Families of Supertwins Bill of Rights

MOST believes that families of triplets, quadruplets, quintuplets, and sextuplets have the following rights and responsibilities:

1. To have access to the most current information available regarding pregnancy and neonatal outcome of higher order multiples. This information is needed in order to make informed healthcare decisions.
2. To receive appropriate prenatal care from a certified, experienced healthcare team which is led by a maternal fetal specialist.

3. To expect parental participation in decision making regarding pregnancy, healthcare, infant/childhood development and education.
4. To expect privacy will be respected by the public as well as by professionals in healthcare and education.
5. To ensure that each family member is appreciated, respected and loved as an individual for his/her unique personality, special gifts and important role within the family.
